Fuller Village Commemorates International World AIDS Day Monday Dec. 1st with 2 important programs:

FENWAY  HEALTH

2PM Brush Hill Function Room- Dr. Taimur Khan, Medical Director of Fenway Health, will share positive insights on progress being made fighting this disease- medical, social, and educational. Join us for this informal and educational look about how far we've come, and new frontiers in treatment and prevention.

6:30PM Brush Hill Function Room- Professor Rick Brabander presents “A Historical and Musical Exploration of the AIDS Memorial Quilt and Corgliano’s Symphony No. 1” The AIDS Memorial Quilt stands as a vast, collective act of remembrance—each panel a deeply personal testament to a life lost to the AIDS epidemic and a defiant assertion of human dignity amid the widespread silence and stigma of the early epidemic. In his Symphony No. 1 (1990), American composer John Corigliano transforms the spirit of the Quilt into sound, crafting a musical monument that gives voice to the grief, rage, and compassion of an era ravaged by loss. Like the Quilt’s patchwork of individual stories, Corigliano’s symphony weaves contrasting musical textures—anguish and lyricism, chaos and serenity—to reveal the intimate human tragedy behind the statistics--- in a very real sense, bringing the Quilt to life.

If you would like to listen to the symphony beforehand, it can be found on You Tube:
